

Eni S p A : Versalis and Gruppo Boero together to develop products from renewables for the Yachting industry

 marketscreener.com/quote/stock/ENI-S-P-A-413403/news/Eni-S-p-A-Versalis-and-Gruppo-Boero-together-to-develop-products-from-renewables-for-the-Yachting-43998138

Publicnow

May 31, 2023

San Donato Milanese (MI), 31 May 2023 - Versalis, Eni's chemical company, and Gruppo Boero, a leader in paint products for building and yachting with a specific approach to Social Responsibility, have begun collaborating on the development of products made from renewable raw materials for the yachting industry.

Versalis has developed hardeners for epoxy systems that are more sustainable than existing market alternatives, containing over 50% raw materials derived from renewable sources.

The collaboration also encompasses the use of a biobased raw material with antibacterial properties which has multiple potential applications.

Versalis will provide further details about the products resulting from this collaboration at the Salone Nautico in Venice (31 May - 4 June), where Eni has an exhibition stand.

Stocks mentioned in the article

Company Profile

Eni S.p.A is a global energy company with high technological content, present along the entire value chain: from the exploration, development and extraction of oil and natural gas to the production of electricity from cogeneration and renewable energy sources, from traditional and bio-based refining and chemistry to the development of circular economy processes. Eni S.p.A extends its reach to end markets, selling gas, electricity and products to local markets as well as to private and professional customers, to whom it also offers energy efficiency and sustainable mobility services. Thanks to the consolidation of skills, technologies, geographical and source diversification, development alliances and innovative business and financial models, Eni S.p.A. continues to generate value, meeting the challenges of the energy trilemma.

EPS Revisions
